

Energy Report for October 2017

From October 3rd

As I listen to the katydids and feel into it, what I'm getting from them is, "Be yourself. It's time to let go of artifice, let go of your ego, let go of everything that is not your authentic self. March to the beat of your own drum, make your own music. It is in this authenticity that you will find safety. Your own music is so beautiful. It's so unique that everything that's going on around you should not matter. It is not about what anyone else thinks, what anyone else does, what anyone else wants, what anyone else thinks is right; it is about what you in our own divine heart find to be true for yourself - outside of ego, outside of societal constraints and confines and conditioning. Go inside to the authentic you and find who you really are, and shout that out to the world.

"If you listen, every single one of us has a different song. Every single one is unique. We may sound similar, but every single one is unique. If you come to know us, you will hear our individual songs and you will be able to differentiate. Just like when you hear voices - human voices - you can tell them apart. This is our song to the trees, to the birds, to the earth. This is our expression of joy. You as a human have so many ways you can express yourself, express your love, your joy. Find that within yourself.

"That will bring you freedom.

"That will bring you joy.

"That will make the world whole again."

Cricket, what do you have for me?

“Be cautious, be ready to move. I can jump out of the way of danger, but only so far. Some of us can jump far and fast, some of us only a little. Humanity is that way. Preparation is good because you can move out of the way of things, but it is often best if you know ahead of time just not to be there. So follow your intuition. This is a month where your intuition will be invaluable. Listen to every nudge, every bit of advice that comes to you, every idea you may have. If you miss something, it's on purpose. There's a reason for it. If you're late, there's a reason for it. If you're early, there's a reason for it.

“Crickets are supposed to bring you great luck, and so many of you are actually afraid of us. You take the leaf litter away that we need to live in, that we so willingly turn into soil. You poison us when you spray around your houses, so that we cannot sing to the earth the way she needs it. Let go of your fear of us, of anything other than yourself. Fear is self-destruction. This country is falling apart because of fear. You say it's hate, but it's not. It's fear. It will eat you alive; it will eat people around you.

“We do not fear. We know our role. Our role is food for others, but our role is to create soil so that the plants can be nourished, grow, and also create food for others. Do not hinder us in this important task. Lori calls us the cleanup crew. We're more than that. We're alchemists. We transform anything dead and dying into pure gold for the earth so that she can be abundant, so can you become abundant. You are also an alchemist. It is your beliefs that allow or prevent the alchemy - to transform your own life, to transform the world around you, and to transform your planet.

“We ask that you pay attention to this - that you look inside yourselves. Stop pointing fingers. Yes, pointing fingers becomes unnecessary. When you are working to change yourself, you have no time to worry about others. So do we not worry about others.

“We are here for specific tasks, and we carry those out to the very best of our ability at all times. Our lives usually end suddenly. We usually become food; dying of old age is pointless. It's not why we're here. We're not here to get old. We're here to do our job; you are here to do your job. When you live in fear because you might die, you do not live; you do not fulfill your job, you do not fulfill the tasks that you came here for. Fear itself is death. It is the death of new ideas, it is the death of growth. It is the death of change.

“Learn your purpose. If you do not know, follow your bliss. Follow what makes you feel good, what makes you feel better, so that you can also be gold for the earth, so that you can also transform that which appears to be waste - the thoughts that are waste, the beliefs that are garbage, the behaviors that are diseased. By releasing all of this into the light, by integrating it, working through it, honoring its presence and its purpose, then letting it fly free into the sun you become an alchemist. You also transmute things into gold for the earth and humanity.

“I am cricket, I am complete.”

Thank you Cricket, your wisdom is much appreciated.

Copyright © 2017 SpiritualEcologist, All rights reserved.

Earwig, my love. Would you like to contribute to our energy report?

I'm getting a very wriggly energy. Frantic is not right; frenetic might be a little better. Going around in circles, chasing the tail kind of thing. Hollowing out an area - creating a small hurricane, a circular storm out of soil.

I ask for the overlighting Deva of Earwig to assist me here. I'm getting that Earwig does not have a friendly energy. Earwig is very much affected by people's attitudes towards him/her. Seen as male, but carrying a feminine energy while basically absorbing the fears that have been put on her. I'm really getting a masculine energy here. But it comes back on people in a not pleasant way.

Deva of Earwig, what is going on here?

I get that we have alienated Earwig, hunted her down, rotted her out from the places she belongs. She persists, she will always persist.

I asked, "Where is that whirlwind and stuff coming from?"

"It's the anger that has been put on her."

She's very resistant to communicating. There is healing to be done here.

The Deva continues:

"Fear and hatred are very much up for review. We started the month off with a shooting, which brings up for so many people all of the past shooting events. It roils up the energy, it brings up the shadow, it brings up the blame game. It brings up the finger pointing, and it brings up the projections onto others.

Humanity, so many people in the U.S. [and interestingly I'm getting it's more men than women] have projected onto Earwig. They have projected evil; they have projected hatred; they have projected fear. They have projected blame for loss of crops; blame for problems in the garden; blame where it does not belong, where it is not justified.

"All of this is whirling up, here to be dealt with this month. Whatever you can transmute before the new moon as the energies are there for you to release, make use of them. Release, release, release. This will also release the hatred and the fear that has been pushed down onto Earwig."

I reached out to Slug. “Go slowly in your undertakings this month. Think them through; there is so much volatility and craziness. Stay sane, meditate a ton. Do everything you can to maintain your balance because so many will be imbalanced and just love where you are in your life now - acceptance of who you are, where you are, what you are - that alone can bring happiness. The world needs your happiness. The world desires happiness for you. I have happiness always with me. Much love to you.”

Thank you slug.

Mother earth would you like to speak?

I get laughing; I get this is the month of the trickster; the month that things will not be as they appear. The month that everything can go topsy-turvy.

I've got Norway Spruce here, and Norway spruce says kindness – so much kindness - is needed, especially in the second half of the month. Love yourself, be kind to yourself, keep yourself well. That is the prerequisite to truly treat others well because you can't give them what you don't have. Pay attention to your roots; what roots you, balances you, holds you in place in a good way. You may need that to hold you steady with the whirlwind of events that may be unfolding this month. Stay in your center. Stay sturdy; stay strong. Bend as you need to, but your core must remain steady and sturdy. Then it doesn't matter what's going on outside of you. The rest of you can bend and sway as long as you stay true to your core and stay centered and rooted. Thank you.

Thank you Norway Spruce.

Burdock, what do you have for me?

"It's about knowing when to hold on and when to let go, when to grow. There's a growing season, and there's a time to pull back into yourself, assimilate what you've learned, assimilate what has happened in your life. You need those times of quiet and darkness so that you can come back stronger in the next season, in the next month, in the next year, in the next phase of your life.

"There are times for a call to action. What is happening here is the opposite - no - it is happening differently here than it is happening in the southern hemisphere. We are in a time of folding back into ourselves and renewing. The southern hemisphere is in a phase of coming out of itself with renewed vigor, and renewed spirit. There is a beautiful unfolding that's happening, and there is a requirement that in the northern hemisphere, in this area where we are, that we go quiet so that this bursting forth can happen on the other side of the earth. It is not possible for every place on the earth to be growing, to be expanding, to be bearing fruit at the same time. It would cause a severe imbalance. The further north you go, the further inward nature turns and the more quiet the people need to become.

"I, Burdock, work with the sun. The length of days, more than temperature, determine my cycle. There is a time for everything. There is a season for everything. I am young. This year I have not born fruit; it's not my time. I'll be going back into the earth to rest, to allow my root to strengthen my core, my center, to strengthen, so that I can pour forth with renewed vigor in the springtime, and bear seed.

"For you, this month is like that. You need to go deep into yourself in the beginning of the month as the moon wanes, as the days grow shorter. Go into yourself, find the beauty. Release the old dying leaves of hate, of anger. They're passed. They're done. Allow them to fall. Allow them to be swept away by the winds of change. Forgive yourself, forgive others. It is a time of shedding - a great time of shedding. It is made easy by the energies that exist. As the moon begins to wax, once again find your love. The shedding will bear fruit as you will need to stand in your core, stand in your strength, dig your roots deep.

"There will be many winds of change coming up. Many people will be flailing; many beings will be flailing. You can be in the calm of the storm if you have forgiven, if you bear no grudge towards any man or woman or other being. It will be like watching a hurricane from the eye - always in the eye - or a tornado; being in the eye in the center grounded, firm, balanced as the chaos goes about around you. Up your meditation time if you need to; find silence; but to get there, you need to go deep inside in those first two weeks and release resistance, release judgment. It is not outside of you. Nothing is outside of you. Racism is not outside of you. It is a manifestation of your thoughts. You, as part of the collective, are part of those thoughts.

“Forgive yourself, forgive others. Love yourself, love others, especially those you find unlovable. Especially love them and forgive them; and know that they are doing the best they can, the best they know how. No judgment. That will allow you to weather anything that comes with strength, with resilience. You will be able to sow your seeds of love where they are most needed, and like my sticky seeds, your love will stick in the most unlikely places and create beauty from there as it is transported outward. It can be an amazing, beautiful month. It can be total chaos. It is your choice. I am Burdock.”

Thank you, Burdock, for your wisdom.

White Snakeroot wants to speak with me, too. Actually, all of them. I have an entire field. I started with one plant, and this past year they have increased exponentially. They're everywhere. It's so beautiful in the fall. Beautiful plant, what do you have for me?

"Just like our blossoms glow in the sunset, you can glow in the darkness. You can be a light in the darkness for people who have lost their way. You can shine your light to help others.

“There is a time for everything. There is a reason that we blossom in the late fall. There are animals that need to over-winter. They need nectar. Many things blossom in the spring because there are so many animals that are growing quickly, that are reproducing like crazy to provide food for the birds and for the animals, for other insects. But our job is to help those who will be over-wintering, or who are gathering food for their young who will need that food in the early spring before food is available. That is who we serve. Bees, flies, wasps, other insects you have not even seen.

“There are a few who eat us; it gives them resilience; makes them toxic to others so they are not desirable. You ask what this has to do with you? There is a season for everything. What you do now may not make a difference, so you may not notice that it makes a difference at this point in time. You may not notice until much further down the line, or you may never know; what you do for others at this point in time will help them grow later. What you do matters. Every choice you make matters. You are here for a purpose.

“We grow in the spring. We are just green. Many think we serve no purpose. We take up space. We deserve to take up space; by virtue of our being here we deserve to take up space. Remember that. You deserve to take up space. By virtue of your being manifest divinity, you deserve to take up space. What you give to others on purpose or inadvertently can shape their lives in ways that you have no way of knowing, so be always in a space of love. Give from your heart. Be that light in the darkness of discord.

“We shine at dusk, at a time when other things become obscure. Much is obscure for you now - for humanity - but there is light in that dusk, and you can be part of that. Dusk is just the ending of one day so that a new one can begin. There must be dusk. There must be a time of darkness so that the sun can rise, so that you can discern the light from the dark, so that you can learn to appreciate both - the gifts of both - so that you can see what is missing when there is darkness, so that you can see the gifts of darkness. Then the gifts as the sun rises; the gifts as the day grows brighter. It is the same on a longer cycle of the moon waning and waxing. It is the same on a longer cycle of the seasons changing. It is the same on a longer cycle of your birth, growth, death, rebirth.

“Many of you are saying there is darkness, and you point to others as the source of darkness. No. It is only the darkness in ourselves that can see the darkness outside of ourselves. Where you are light, you will see light. Where you are darkness, you will see darkness. If you see problems outside of you, it is because the problem is within you. Look to yourself. Feed and nurture others. Do not criticize. Do not blame. There is only love; we show that in our beautiful blossoms. Some see them as beautiful, some do not. Some see their thoughts as beautiful, others disagree with those thoughts. There is no right, there is no wrong.

“It all comes down to balance. There can be no good deeds where there is no need for good deeds. There can be no helpers where there is no need for anyone to be helped. Nature strives for balance, but it is always, always a becoming and unbecoming. There can be no stasis in balance. That is not possible. It is a movement, a flowing. Always changing, like the water from the ocean coming inland to meet the water coming down from the rivers. There is no stasis, there is an exchange. We ask you to be part of that change, to understand that things cannot be one way always. They cannot be the other way always.

“You cannot be one way always; you are ever changing. Your body is ever changing. If you stay the same, there is no life. With deep, deep love, we ask you to be that light in the dusk, to light the way for others. Not to scold, not to tell, not to direct. Love does not direct. Love holds and supports. Love lights the way for others to find their own guidance. Love caresses, and holds, and releases. There is a flow to love, like the tides, like the winds, like the grasses as they create that sea upon land. Stand in your strength, stand in your power, stand in your love. We thank you for speaking with us.”

Thank you White Snakeroot.

"I am Oak Tree. My roots go deep and wide. I connect with others in many ways. We trees have our own network surrounding this earth, energetic as well as physical, just as you have a connection that goes around this earth, energetic and physical. It is time to tap into that. Your collective has much hurt, and much pain, and all of you suffer from it whether you think so or not. As you feed love into this collective, it shines brighter. The future shines brighter.

"You are not the only beneficiaries. As the human collective shines brighter, the plants and the animals shine brighter. Where there is more love for one species, there is more love for all species. When you allow yourself to be pulled down by others, you pull us down with you. If I am in your garden while you are hating others, I feel your hate and it affects my growth; it affects my energy. It is time to forgive and let go. The time of love is upon us.

This is a love that many of you might not even recognize because it is pure. In your society, you have healthcare that is connected to your work. When you lose your work, you lose your healthcare. You have a conditional love that is connected to specific people. If you lose that person, you lose your love. That is not pure love, that is not divine love, that is not unconditional love. Unconditional love lives in your heart of hearts, and it encompasses all. It loves beings whether alive or in spirit. It loves this planet - all beings on this planet, alive or in spirit.

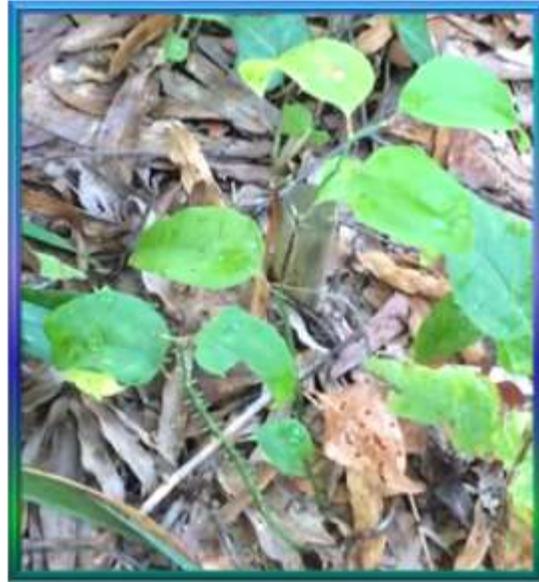

We connect with our trees, both in the physical and in the spiritual realm. You can do this as well when you know love. It is time to embrace your brothers and sisters, no matter what their beliefs, political, religious, or otherwise. This separation is an illusion. This difference in opinions about political means is simply an illusion created to separate you, to hold you separate. Man has tried to do that with our caretakers, the native peoples of the world. They have largely been unsuccessful because these peoples are like us, they belong to the land. They are part of the land, and without the land, they do not exist. Without their connection, they do not exist. So they hold that connection to the land, to the beings of the land, to each other. You can do the same. As you reconnect with the land, as you love the land and her beings, you love yourself and others. There is no separation, there is no difference. It is all perceived.

"This month can be very intense. The energies coming at the new moon and waxing may cause turmoil. Stand rooted in your strength. Have your roots deep in the ground. Stay in balance, stay in love, or you will be swept up in the maelstrom. There is so much love in this world. Connect with any being in nature, and you will find love. Look deep inside yourself and you will find love, for that is where you come from. That is your heritage. Love yourself, love the trees, love everything. That is the future. Thank you.

Thank you, Oak.

Beautiful Greenbriar, what do you have for us? I get laughter, giggling. Big sigh of relief - of release, actually. Here, again, I'm getting roots are important. I get them being very solidly in the ground. Greenbriar has protection in the form of thorns. We see it as prickly, we see it as a defense mechanism, and it is. It's for survival. We have many defense mechanisms, but so much of the time they are misplaced, misguided. They are not about physical survival; they are about emotional survival in a world that does not suit.

Greenbriar has thorns, but those who walk with her energetically do not feel them. There is no need for defense when the energies are compatible. We need to be forming communities of energetically compatible beings. In community is survival. If you look at Greenbriar, maybe a seed starts here or a plant starts there, but it grows where there is community.

“Community with compatible energy does not always mean like. It does not always mean the same. It does not always mean one species. Community is plants who can share space, feed each other, or at least respect and not harm each other. We learn this from the older plants in some cases. Even if I am a young seedling of Greenbriar, there may be more mature plants here. In this case, the bloodroot is my teacher. It reaches out to me, and holds me.

“Most others do not seek to harm, they seek only to make their own way, but for you humans, often in making your own way you seek to harm others. This affects all of you. Now is not a time for me to seed. Now is a time when the sun wanes, and the earth cools. It is a time for me to prepare to go inward. I am small, I am young, but I know this. This is a month of introspection; of inward journeys. As you journey inward, you may find much darkness. This darkness is good. It's a part of yourself that you must meet, you must greet, you must love, and you must integrate. It is resisting this great integration that is costing you so dearly.

“We plants live in balance where we are allowed. We create beauty, each in our own way. Do you see the beauty in my shiny leaves? Do you see the beauty in my thorns? Do you see the beauty in how I spiral upwards? You do the same in your journey through life, but you don't see it. You see linear. There is no linear. Linear is an illusion. I have said my piece. Journey inward. Find your love and as the moon waxes, shine that light outwards. It will bring so much beauty. May you go in peace. “

Thank you, Greenbriar.

Seeing if the Earth has anything more to say.

What I'm getting is very hard to describe. But the same feeling as the trees, of rootedness, groundedness; having a very sturdy, steady, strong base that you operate from. When that is in place, the rest of you can bend and you won't break, but you need to be rooted in yourself, in your love. Just getting this very heavy, solid feeling, almost like when you hear those big drums at a powwow or something; just that very, heavy, very solid, very earthy feeling. That's where we need to be this month – just very, very grounded. Then we can let everything swirl around us this month and we won't get blown away with it.

Thank you Earth.